CLOSER LOOK: Third pick; Needed last, got stuck dueling from the inside, and now makes only 2nd start since summer of 3yo season; rail berth yet again and same pace foe is back in here; wouldn't be a bad move to try something different at this point as he doesn't need the early lead for success; another sharp work since the return race.

Second pick; His 2nd career win was in the local derby back in 2024 and he landed in a rather challenging spot off the bench - they zipped right around there although the winner did come from behind this guy in the early going; seems fair to expect this one to move forward in 2nd start off the layoff but we're not inclined to back him with great optimism.

Blinkers come off today, and for the first time, from runner whose first pair on a mile track left plenty to be desired; not really sure why he should be any better now than he was last year, as runner doesn't seem the sort who would be eager to try his hand over the longer course; another small field to limit the downside potential; barn 0-1-3-0 / 10 over 5 years with runners taking blinkers off.

 Steps up in class a good deal but isn't THAT far removed from fitting in with this lot; as a 6yo he doesn't seem very likely to improve from last year to this year and that latest only matched BSF's he was getting back in 2024; runner-up in latest returned to shave 2 points off his Beyer in next-out win while others validated the 5/10 figure; will probably need to improve but is eligible for a step forward with a recent race under foot.

First pick; Showed some ability as a sophomore and broke poorly from the rail in only dull try since 2024; participated in a spirited pace battle upon return last month and will find one of those foes back in here; outside draw lets him decide to set or stalk the pace here and there is every reason why improvement may be in the cards for this one today. -George Cottrell

CLOSER LOOK: Second guess; That was a stand-up effort relative to these upon first local asking; nothing about Oklahoma form turned heads - how do you get beat 14 in 1:13.96 for 6 furlongs on a fast strip? (and she was seemingly 'dragged' along to that, behind loose speed); MAYbe this gal took a quick fancy to EMD??; she IS in good hands locally, and there certainly isn't much in here.

Seemed to be on the verge of getting somewhere at the demise of No Cal racing and then the TuP effort sent her to the shelf for a long while before the return vs. Cal-bred's didn't go as planned; latest race did produce a couple of next-out winners, one of which boosted his Beyer by 20 points in next start at same level; IF this one were to boost his own figure by 20 points here then he'd start to be in the conversation.

Third guess; Barn has 2 in here and with that you can hardly help but divy-up some of the larger prizes; outfit's other runner is speed if she's anything and this one is a closer (which, in this company, could be disguised as going evenly all the way around); all of 6 panels today, which may help cause others to drop by the wayside as this one races evenly and seems like Silky Sullivan in so doing; gonna be a challenge to miss the trifecta yet again.

Fourth guess; Only 2 losses to date; beat only 3 foes to date; but she still has a tremendous INexperience edge against this lot; the 5/16 winner shaved 5 points off her Beyer next out and they needed more than 20 seconds to cover the final 1.5 furlongs over the fastest course in the land on 5/16; price cut is offset by the move in. OLDER foes for the first time; gonna have to guess our way through this field. -George Cottrell

First pick; Speed ran one-two all the way in the small group in his latest and 3 of those 5 are back in here; race under foot gives an advantage over the pair drawn inside while the 65 Beyer posted in his return offers this field a target to shoot at; could improve with race under his belt OR perhaps the pace is more realistic and he regresses from latest; difficult read.

He's again just a 3yo vs. OLDER foes and he did top one of same in latest after facing 7 elders and seeing all the heels 2-back; pace wasn't ideal in latest with the top pair going all the way in a small field; stakes-tested runner needs to improve a bit to matter very much here; be aware that the stakes at Grants Pass was a group entirely comprised of maidens; could go either way.

 Thumped every time at SA and now ships north trying to find himself to be something aside from a 4yo maiden; would guess him to be fit enough after a couple of 2-turn starts in April but this one certainly does drop anchor rather quickly; don't really know if he would pass foes if they were easy targets; should find the pace somewhat challenging in here if interested; slight boost in the asking price over latest SA try.

Second pick; That race on 5/9 earned a solid figure and a few of the others have returned to validate it while speed held on quite well in there too; for that reason we can envision this 4yo going better this time around while moving off the fence and dropping in vs. sellers; there remains the chance that this gelding takes to a mile oval better than he fancied the 5/8th's course back home; consider.

Debuted as a 4yo and was off a length slow and then 4-wide on the turn 4 weeks ago; mom had decent tactical speed and one of his siblings was the BC Derby winner, August Rain ($293K, 3 stakes wins in 5 starts as a 2yo); can see giving him another chance.

First pick; Debuted as a FIVE-year-old and broke a length slow before racing wide into the turn in that one; speed held on pretty well in lone start and he was probably gonna be hard pressed to get anywhere after the sluggish beginning; most noteworthy is that only now does he move in just below the 2022 purchase price; look at the spiffy half-mile drill last week too; sold works wherever he has ventured in the past; the feeling you get when you're about to go down on a 5yo maiden...-George Cottrell

CLOSER LOOK: Third pick; She was going reasonably well down south for $20K claiming so the move to $15K here just might agree with her; miss went OK from the rail draw 2-back but probably would have done better if drawn outside and opting for a stalking style; running time in her latest was quite solid in a race won by speed; wide trip for this gal in latest and she worked smartly since returning here; expect her usual effort, which is sometimes good enough.

Barn saddled 4 starters at Great Falls last year and lands here after GF announced it wouldn't run in 2026; this gal is officially 1-for-21 but she romped long ago going 5 furs. in a mixed-breed-eligible race that doesn't count and then became the rare bird DQ'ed from two straight for medication violations 6 days apart; spent much of her time facing the usual suspects in the hinterlands - winner of latest went to Alberta and notched BSF's of 50 and 53 there; might be a long day for her here.

She finally earned maiden win - ON TURF - in a spot where she sat a garden trip behind a pair of pace battlers; 4yo did finish first AT EmD 11 months ago before being DQ'ed so that has her a bit more tolerable than is the run of the mill 1-for-24 sort; s he is going to have to improve to beat these but may have her confidence up where it has scarcely been before.

 That was a strong effort in latest considering she'd been doing battle with shaky opposition down at Grants Pass; Miss Peru is now an 0-for-31 sort who last hit 40 on the Beyer scale in 2024; the 4th horse both times was an 0-for-23 sort whose last Beyer above 19 was... in 2021; NOT to mention that this is a SIX-year-old already; just don't get too confident about her.

 Let's say that she needed every start to date and then observe the serious pace battle she found in her latest return; excuse that turf line and recognize that the career bow was in stakes company; would opine that this is a candidate for a major improve ment at any time and you should probably take a look at that workout from last week.

 First pick; Barn has the outside pair and just one in the field has ever earned a higher Beyer than this gal did in last start, despite the terrible beginning; now in fairness, the pace was a cracker and the superfecta contained all of those who'd been 4 -5-6 early; still admit this one has further upside potential and is well drawn in 2nd start of sophomore season for sharp outfit. -George Cottrell

CLOSER LOOK: Second pick; Showed good speed when moved in vs. maiden sellers for first local try; he's just a 3yo so he's probably going to get better with time; still has to go some to reach the one next door and the rail draw probably won't do this guy any favors; the 2-back winner was the early speed and he won in world-class time so this guy's effort was surely better than seemed, as he was just the first loser; has credentials.

First pick; Were this runner a 3yo you might already be at the window, but the fact that he didn't make it to the races until May of 5yo season gives cause for pause; work-tab in 2026 has been like none prior of his, so there really does seem to be some talent there; is he dropping in for $10K beCAUSE he's a 5yo maiden??: could have these over a barrel but you can't be shocked if it isn't that easy.

He's a young 3yo making just 2nd start of the year after notching career-best Beyer in recent return; latest was his first for a tag and speed held on quite well in that affair; ALL of the runners in the Josephine County Juvenile of 2025 still share just the ONE win, so don't get too excited about that; there are reasonable glimmers of hope in this corner with little of the despair that seems to permeate all of these 5yo maiden foes.

Blinkers on today, but he's worn them before... FIVE years old, NINE starts, and never yet within 17 lengths of the winner in the end; were this 1974, it would look a lot worse with field sizes in double digits; gelding has topped just SIX foes during his career, dam was unraced, and lone sibling was drilled in both starts; barn needs to rekindle the glory years of 4.5 decades ago.

RELatively speaking this lightly-raced 4yo could be the happy medium between these ancient maidens and their 3yo foes... but when viewed individually, a 4yo maiden is nothing to crow about; he topped a trio of foes to date but two of those were just last week!; speed figures on the steady rise and he didn't even list an official workout until last Nov. so he hasn't known the starts and stops like the others; wide draw keeps him away from traffic but runner still needs to improve his game a good deal. -George Cottrell
