CLOSER LOOK: No factor in a race like this here May 2 but her prior start was a win over open foes so she's capable of better; still, her form hasn't been all that consistent and her 3 tries in races like this saw her finish 5th, 6th and 6th so while that nice win over open foes impressed could that be a bit of an outlier?

TRAINER: WonLastStart(2.00 $0.00) Dirt(22.18 $1.47) Sprint(22.14 $1.25) Had it her way at LRC in her debut last Sept. 21 as she pressed, took over and drew off; hasn't been seen since, which is a bit disconcerting; not only is there the long layoff it's first time vs. winners and while she won easily the Beyer still likely needs a kick in the pants; but the necessary improvement is by no means out of reach.

Comes here sharp with 3 straight fine efforts; of course, all 3 came on turf so the move to dirt is a bit of a wrinkle; the good news is she handled dirt decently last fall to start her careers she's by no means out of her element; and those last 3, while on turf, may also indicate she's improved considerably since those dirt outings.

It took a bit of time but it looks as though she's figured out things; put it all together to blast maidens here May 9; we're a half-furlong shorter today but she still had a clear lead after 5 1/2fs in that May 9 romp; enough tactical speed and the outside slot should lead to a nice, stalking trip; plenty of positives but don't ever underestimate how big a jump is can be to go from maidens to facing winners. -Michael Hammersly

Expensive colt flashed talent in first 2 starts earlier this meet; not only is it nice to know he's got some ability but that gives him an experience edge over most of these, too; that debut 3rd looks better as he chased 2 beasts, the winner being a Baffert hotshot who's among the division elite; it's a tad disconcerting that after his April 4 race he didn't post his next work until May 2 but at least since the works have been brisk and steady for a trainer who's super of this kind of layoff; dam as a winner.
